Masters' and Doctoral Thesis Supervision

Since 2000, I have supervised a total of 51 graduate (32 PhD and 19 Master's) students in Teaching English as a Foreign Language (TEFL). As such, my responsibilities have included, but were not limited to, the following:

- serving as a mentor and role model in both teaching and research practices,
- helping students understand the program (course and research) requirements to manage these requirements in a timely and efficient manner,
- helping students develop academic, research, and other professional skills to carry themselves in an increasingly competitive discipline,
- addressing research topics which respond to the students' needs and growing demands of the discipline and, eventually, the labor market,
- helping students address viable research problems, define goals, adopt methods and instruments to ensure research rigor and contribution,
- providing students with regular and formative feedback on their performance and progress,
- encouraging students to network and participate in professional organizations, and
- preparing students to be assertive and competitive professionals through co-authorship and dissemination of research results in conferences and periodicals.
